"STAINED GLASS," SUBJECT OF W. H. BURNHAM LECTURE

Skilled Artist And Craftsman
Opens Lecture Series of Winter on Nov. 15

Wilbur Herbert Burnham, artist and master craftsman in stained glass, will be the first speaker on the lecture program for the winter. He will speak in chapel on Friday evening, November 15, on the subject of stained glass.

Mr. Burnham's lecture is illustrated by colored plates showing many of the wonderful medieval windows known to every lover of pure translucent glass. He also shows many of his own most notable works, together with illustrations showing the multiple processes of fabricating a stained glass window. His talk is not so much a lecture as an explanation of a beautiful subject.

Mr. Burnham spent many years in the study of the stained glass windows of the great Gothic cathedrals and he concentrated especially upon the cathedral of Chartres, which is said to have the most beautiful windows of all.

Mide Famous Windows

Today this man is recognized not only as a creator but also as an understanding authority in the field of art. Architects from all over the world seek his co-operation in creating in the churches and cathedrals they build, windows which are works of art.

Among the more recent work of this artist are the five great clerestory windows for the new Riverside, or Rockefeller church in New York City, of which Harry Emerson Fosdick is pastor.

In addition to these windows, he is responsible for the series of 9 nave aisle windows for the new Princeton University Chapel, said to be the largest and finest chapel in the country.

Rose-Window at Rheims

A recent indication of the wide recognition of his ability is the fact that the architect of the newly-restored Rheims Cathedral has asked him to design and execute the north transept rose window, replacing the one which was destroyed during the War.

Mr. Burnham will cover, in his talk, a brief history of stained glass, including its period of greatest use, its decline, and its present revival, illustrating all his points by the well-known windows of today.

Board of Control Elects

Betsy Embrey President

Betsy Embrey, '30, was elected president of the Board of Control of the Sweet Briar News at its first meeting, Monday, October 28. Polly Swift, '31, was chosen secretary-treasurer.

A constitution for the Board of Control is to be drawn up and presented before the next meeting of the board. Editorial policies were discussed and will be formally adopted, also at the next meeting.

24-Hour Telephone Service Begins Nov. 4

The beginning of 24-hour telephone service which started on Monday, November 4, means that Sweet Briar for the first time in history can be reached directly by wire from the outside world at any time of the day or night.

Until the present, the limited hours for making calls has caused great inconvenience, and because of the franchise which the Amerstar telephone company holds for this district, Sweet Briar has been powerless to make any arrangements with the Lynchburg exchange.

Mr. Parr, of the Amerstar company, has at last fulfilled his promise, and from now on it will be possible to make calls at any time. There will probably still be hours for the closing of Miss Ditt's office, which will mean that girls in the case of emergency calls, except will not be sent for after a definite hour at night. This hour is to be decided on shortly.

A new phone has been installed in Louise Currie's room in Gray so that emergency calls may be attended to immediately.

WILLIAM AND MARY GIRLS ENTERTAIN HOCKEY TEAM

Night Football Game, One-Act
Plays, And Banquet Features
Of Week-End

The Sweet Briar hockey team was entertained over the week-end by William and Mary College in Williamsburg, Virginia. Everything possible was done for the girls on the trip by their hostesses, the William and Mary hockey team.

The team drove from Sweet Briar, leaving chapel after lunch on Friday, and arriving at Williamsburg early in the evening. The past week-end was homecoming week-end at William and Mary and there were, consequently, many festivities in their honor, to which the Sweet Briar girls were taken.

Plays in "Phi Beta" Hall

The first entertainment was a series of one-act plays by the William and Mary Players which were given in Phi Beta Kappa Hall. The honor society was founded at William and Mary College, and this chapter holds precedence over those in all other colleges.

A banquet was held Saturday night in the College dining room, attended by the Deans of Women, members of the departments of physical education of both colleges, and the two hockey teams.

One of the high lights of the week-end was the illuminated football game, in which William and Mary College conquered George Washington University, Saturday night. The field was brightly lighted by strong electric lights, and between-halves the freshmen amused the upperclassmen by a snake dance and other antics on the field.

PRES. GLASS RECEIVES LITT. D. FROM COLUMBIA

One of Four Women To Be Thus
Honored At 175th
Convocation

2,000 IN ACADEMIC MARCH

Dr. H. Parker Willis, Member Board of Overseers, Awarded
LL.D.

President Meta Glass was one of three women upon whom the degree of Litt. D. was conferred at the Fall Convocation of Columbia University, which marked the opening of the 175th year of that university, on Thursday, October 31.

The procession contained 2,000 men and women. One hundred and twenty-three honorary degrees were conferred at this time. Miss Virginia Gilder-sleeve, Dean of Barnard college, Dorothy Cansfield Fisher, author, and Patty Hill were the other women to receive the honor which came to Miss Glass. Dr. H. Parker Willis, a member of the Board of Overseers of Sweet Briar college, received an honorary Doctor of Laws degree.

Attends Alumnae Dinner

Miss Glass attended the dinner for the alumnae of Columbia which was held at the Hotel Pennsylvania on October 30. On Friday, November 1, President Glass attended a called meeting of the Advisory Group on College Libraries, of the Carnegie Corporation of New York. She was made a member of this group in the spring of 1929.

On this same day, Miss Glass was a guest at the wedding of Edna Van Lagen Lee, '26, of Montclair, New Jersey. She returned to college on Monday, November 4.

Repairs Disturb Quiet in Library

The recent hammering, scraping, and sawing, in the new library has occasioned many wondering questions, but it is nothing more than the tearing down of old plaster and the putting up of new, and the last minute nailing of locks and bolts.

Due to the fact that plaster was put on some of the walls when they were still too damp to hold it, the architect has found it necessary to do a little replastering of a few of the partitions in some of the smaller rooms. It seems that this is quite a common occurrence in new buildings and therefore not a cause for surprise.

The workmen are hurrying to complete this work and the other little odd jobs which were still left to be done after the building was opened for use, and they hope to finish so that they may leave it within a short time.

SWEET BRIAR VARSITY DOWNS WILLIAM AND MARY BLEVEN, 6-0

"SOPHISTRIES OF 1930"

"Sophistries of 1930" is the title of the senior show which is headed by Helen Mathews and will be presented on Friday evening, December 6, in the chapel. Josephine Reid is in charge of the properties and Helen Nightingale, '32, will provide the music.

While actual work on the show has not yet begun, Diddy and her committee are busy working on ideas in order that the lines, songs and dances may produce the best possible results. This is the grand song of the class of '30 to Sweet Briar showdown, and the girls are anxious to make their last production their best.

NEW GIRLS TO PRESENT BARRY PLAY ON NOV. 30

"You and I," a Modern Comedy
Is Selected For Production

"You and I," by Philip Barry, will be the play presented by the new members of Paint and Patches on Saturday, evening, November 30, at 8:15 in the chapel.

Every year the new girls, who are taken into the dramatic association, make their stage debut at Sweet Briar with a play which will give them a chance to prove their talent. The cast is chosen after tryouts from among their own number and has no old members in it at all.

The play selected for presentation this year is a thoroughly modern comedy, and Betsy Embrey, president of Paint and Patches, feels that it is one which will give the new actresses an opportunity to make a very creditable showing.

STATE LIBRARIANS VISIT CAMPUS; GUESTS AT TEA

The Virginia State Library Association, which held its annual meeting in Lynchburg on November 1 and 2, drove out to Sweet Briar on Saturday, November 2, for inspection of the new Mary Helen Cochran Library and for a tea which was served in the Rapid parlor. In the absence of President Glass, Dean Dutton and Miss Doris Lomer, librarian, acted as hostesses.

The members of the association were guests of the Jones Memorial Library in Lynchburg on Friday, November 1, and attended the formal opening of the new Randolph-Macon College Library on the same day.

The Y. W. C. A. rental library is open from 7 to 7:30 p. m. each evening in the Amherst-Students' Room, second floor Gray.

collegiate Match

LARGE CROWD AT GAME

Lyon Defends Goal Valiantly Against Attack of William and Mary's
Forwards

Sweet Briar Varsity conquered the William and Mary hockey team in a brilliant victory which mounted to the final score of 6-0 at Williamsburg on November 2. The whole game was one of long passes from the back field to the forward line, and continual hammering at the opposing goal.

Immediately following the very first whistle to start off the game, Sweet Briar carried the ball quickly down the field and Olcott made a pretty slick into the goal. A second goal was made within the first five minutes, and later in the half, a third.

Several times the ball approached dangerously the goal of Sweet Briar's defense, but always if the ball passed through our back, Lyon saved the day by hitting the ball far out to the wing.

With the beginning of the second half, the play became a little less open and strenuous, and several dodges and push passes were successfully executed. Several times the goal offensive play of William and Mary advanced the ball positionally near our goal line, and it was only through dodged perseverance that Sweet Briar always succeeded in preventing the opposing team from scoring.

November 2 was Homecoming Day for all William and Mary alumnae, and consequently the game was unusually well attended and applauded. Friday night Sweet Briar was invited to several one-act plays given for returned alumnae.

Juniors To Entertain Freshmen With Movie

Plans for the Junior-Freshman party, which will be held Friday evening, November 8, are well under way. The arrangements for the food and entertainment are in the hands of a committee composed of Mary Leigh Seaton, Elizabeth Stribbling, Frances O'Brien, Elizabeth Phillips, and Martha Tillery.

The principal feature of this party will be a movie which will be in the hands of an operator from Lynchburg. Just what movie it will be, has not yet been decided. There will be music during the show and between the reels. Entertainment will be furnished by Martha Tillery, Helen Sims and Mary Henderson.

Owing to the large number of freshmen, each Junior will expect three or four "sisters" to the party.

'NEWS' NEEDS HELP!

THE News needs the cooperation of all students and faculty if it would fill to the best capacity its purpose as the official news publication of the college.

Since the News is only two years old, we feel that not enough of the faculty and students are aware of its possibilities, nor do they realize the difficulties attendant upon gathering all news of value each week.

In order that the News can be truly called the publication of the college, we ask everyone who has any news or features of interest to send them to the News by the Saturday before the issue in which they would like to see them appear. Don't keep them as secrets until they are stale news!

DOWN WITH SHUSHING

To stop "shushing" before the end of this year is one of the aims of the News. We feel sure that with the cooperation of all students, we can accomplish this task and at the same time, create a more closely united student body.

Under the present system of proctoring, the proctor has practically no peace during the so-called quiet hours because she is so busy shushing. In many cases the noises which the proctor makes to preserve quiet are far more annoying and disturbing than those noises themselves.

There are rumors that more quiet rules are to be imposed upon us, much to our disapproval. We believe that more rules would only make students feel more dependent upon the proctor than ever and less dependent upon themselves as individuals for compliance to rules.

Certainly more rules would make it harder for the proctors as well as for the rest of the students and we can see no need for them. Proctors can soon be put out of style here if there is no longer a need for them. The question is, do we want more rules or more independence?

If we are worthy of being called college women, we should be able, independently, to keep the halls quiet when they should be quiet instead of placidly accepting more rules and the continued noise of disturbing proctors. Let's do it now!

ARE SWEET BRIAR GIRLS A TYPE?

It is interesting to hear occasional or even frequent visitors at Sweet Briar say that the girls here are of a distinct and recognizable type. If we think the statement over for a few minutes we can see why it might be made. In the next moment, however, we would probably ask for its qualification.

We will admit, that most of us like to wear our hair in a knot in the back or necks, greet our friends on campus with the informal "hey," have a hankering for an occasional week-end trip, and spend most of our spare time earnestly pursuing knowledge in the library. But further than this we would probably deny that Sweet Briar is reversing the process of evolution and moulding heterogeneous into homogeneous matter.

Our interests within the college are, of course, virtually the same. We cooperate exceptionally well, but this does not imply that we have a single viewpoint. Instead we have reason to believe that our college offers us in its activities a splendid opportunity for developing our individuality.

If we can make good this claim and at the same time store our minds with the more permanent experiences of the race, we shall become humanists and have every right to believe that we are not merely a type Sweet Briar, but are a representative group of American young women.

A. A. U. W. ADOPTS TRIBUTE HONORING MISS BARTLETT

The following resolutions were adopted by the Sweet Briar Branch of the American Association of University Women, at its meeting, Monday, October 20.

"Whereas, in the death of Professor Abbie Bartlett, the Sweet Briar Branch of the American Association of University Women has lost a former president and a consistently helpful and inspiring member, whose services extend over a period of years, we, the members of the Branch, wish to express our appreciation of her character and our gratitude at having had the privilege of working under her guidance and with her co-operation.

"During the period of her first presidency, 1923-1924, she deepened the interest in world affairs of a somewhat isolated organization by planning and conducting a program on topics of international significance. Realizing that a strengthening of the community bonds between the College and Amherst County was also an objective to be urgently desired, she enlarged the scope of activities for Amherst County Day and planned for the better entertainment and stimulation of those citizens and children of the County who should be, at that time, the guests of the College. Through her popularity and influence with the students, she was able to enlist their assistance in this venture to an unusual degree.

"In Paris she was our worthy representative at the Convention of the International Federation of University Women in 1925, and the report of her stimulating interest with foreign students was inspirational in its glimpses of the larger contacts possible to all of us.

"As Chairman of the Program Committee of the Branch in 1927-1928, the sessions she conducted on the Educational Policies of American Colleges and Universities were of notable interest and advantage to an organization composed almost altogether of faculty members.

"During the period of her second presidency, 1928-1929, she carried forward with consistent success those projects to which this branch stands committed: the association of its members in friendly entertainment and in the common endeavor of accomplishing projects of worth to the College; the stimulation of a desire for graduate study; the formation of desirable fellowships for the work of scholarly women of the United States and of foreign countries; a deepening of the mutual understanding and appreciation of the College and its immediate neighbors; and the encouragement of our graduates to affiliate themselves with the work of the larger organization of which this branch is a member. The success of her endeavors during this period appears the more inspiring when it is remembered that she accomplished it under great physical disabilities.

"In her character there was much of the granite firmness of her rock-ribbed state, but for her friends there was also a tenderness and good cheer that suggested the smiling, verdant meadows. Though New England born, she had an intense and enduring affection for her second state. This Virginia branch of the national organization wishes to record its gratitude for her assistance in the formulation of its policies and in their steadfast maintenance.

It's actually beginning to look like winter again—the mud is here and the good gentle Southern rain! Wait till February, Freshmen!

Dr. Connor takes the prize for the neatest trick of the week with his remark to Mr. Bennett in regard to his chaperonage of girls. Four in a small room, but imagine—had he been the suggestion for the position of the fourth member would simplify matters a lot and also would add an air of clubiness and intimacy to the group.

The Senior Class this past week-end enjoyed for once the thrill of being popular en masse. If a senior couldn't boast of a date for Saturday night, she should retire, weep, and consider herself a total social failure—with the Freshmen!

Poor Owen—campus opinion wants to know whether she recently met up with "Scarface Al", or if there is someone who has taken a really savage aversion to her!

The old library will soon resume its former position as the noisiest place in college, but, imagine—there will be no Miss Steptoe to reign order, and the disturbance will be perfectly legal.

The title of "Browsing Room" has paved the way for many similar titles being affixed to other rooms. For instance, there is a room on third floor Gray whose occupants choose to call it the "drowsing room", as well as the "mousing room" (due to an unwanted third robed roommate). The "sousing room" may be found directly across the hall.

With the Alumnae

Invitations are out for the wedding of Miss Mary Kent Robbins '27 to the Reverend Roger Alling. The wedding will be held in the afternoon of November 19. After December 15, the couple will be at home at 30 Nassau Street, Princeton, N. J.

Mildred Lewis Fore '29 spent the week-end at college as did Mary Archer Bean '29.

Isabel Webb Luff '20 accompanied by Mr. Luff spent last Monday at the college. They were returning to their home in Youngstown.

Mildred Ellis Stroh '25 will be married on November 9, to Mr. William Feltner, of New York.

Mildred Brough '29, who has been spending much of her time visiting in Virginia, returned last Saturday for a week.

Editor News

Dear Editor:

We all revere Sweet Briar's traditions and customs and appreciate the part they play in forming a stabilizing background for our college life. But when one becomes too sentimental organization there is always the danger of failing a forewarn. To preserve the old and at the same time to welcome the new, is not an easy task.

Some of our rules seem to be relics of the days when this was Sweet Briar Institute and younger girls went to the Academy. I am referring to the regulation that all dates be off campus by ten-thirty Saturday night. For college girls who at home are given much greater freedom this seems ridiculously early in the evening to be leaving a date. With chaperons provided, with no classes the next day, why shouldn't dates, some of whom have come long distances for this short evening at Sweet Briar, be allowed to linger until eleven or so? This isn't such a giddy hour; most of us had to be in by then from our high school dances.

Hoping this suggestion will meet with favor from those in charge of the Saturday night gym,

I remain

Sincerely yours,

A Senior

P. S.—I am viewing the situation from an unbiased standpoint; my motive is to aid my more social sisters.

As the Hockey Team departed Saturday for its victorious trip to Williamsburg, a particularly touching event was the farewell that Scottie bid to her austere roommates, Able—sweet, Scottie!

An alumna was heard to remark that her recent visit to Sweet Briar was simply a "breath of heaven"—if she were only here now with the rain, mud, and a few six weeks' quizzes to take, we wonder if she might not change her mind and think it a breath of something else.

College Girls Grow

Sturdier and Taller

"College girls today are taller and in every respect larger than were their predecessors of a generation ago. That is the opinion of Mrs. Katherine Blunt of the University of Chicago, after examining statistics compiled from Yassar, Smith college, Stanford and the University of Chicago. This is apparently due, thinks Mrs. Blunt, to better diet, lighter clothes and more outdoor exercise.

"The Yassar students today," she points out, "average two inches taller than their predecessors of 30 years ago. In 1891-1895, the average girl entering Yassar was 63.1 inches tall, weighed 117 pounds and had a girth of 45.3 inches. In 1923-27, her height had increased to 64.9, her weight had increased to 123.9 pounds and her girth to 24.4 inches. This change in height has been perfectly steady. If that is true of college girls, it is probably true of girls all over the country."

Many Features

The old standby—parlors are green with jealousy! Their noses are completely broken. What is the reason? Every Sweet Briar student knows the answer. The Browning Room, of course! Longings have now come true in this ideal place, where you can curl up in a comfy chair and read just the book you like more than any other in the world.

Artistic taste is displayed in both furnishings and lighting effect. There is something indescribable about the Browning Room, which might be called atmosphere. The personality of Mary Helen Cochran radiates from all the corners. The paneling makes a beautiful background, reflecting the soft lights of lamps or windows. There may be "no place like home", but The Browning Room runs a close second.

No more noisy footsteps! Have you been delightfully deceived by the wood and marble floors in the new library? Linoleum is partly responsible for the tick, which reigns in spite of stubborn shoes. The smooth, grained wood is really Jasper Hinson and the marble a good imitation of the same material. Those who have been fooled still can claim as genuine the Tennessee marble stairways and drinking fountain. Who doesn't admire the handsome staircase near the left entrance greeting the visitors upon entrance! Its graceful winding hurls one immediately to know what is beyond the bend. The wrought iron banister accompanies the climber to the window half way up the stairs, which is a delicious surprise. In contrast, the back stairs possess the dignity and simplicity of black slate. These are just a few of the special features of the new Mary Helen Cochran Library.

FRESHMAN TOURNAMENT

Louise Woodward was the victor in the finals of the freshman tennis tournament played on Monday, October 28, when she defeated Elizabeth Fowler, runner-up, 6-4, 6-0.

"The semi-finals of the match were played on October 16. At that time Louise Woodward defeated Katherine Gochbauer by the score 4-6, 6-4, 6-0, and Elizabeth Fowler won her match with Virginia Vesey, 6-4, 6-3.

Peronne Whittaker, Head of Tennis, urges the freshmen to play for places on their ladder if the weather permits.

Quizzes, Warnings, Morons
Busy Signs, Summer School

Now that we have emerged from the shades of six weeks' quizzes—warnings are upon us. We hear the less enlightened ones bewailing the loss of weekends and cuts, while those of riper intelligence speculate upon the possibilities of a warning or so.

Nowhere is the imperfection of human intelligence shown in such dazzling relief. A casual observer around campus would be impressed by the number of "potential morons."

At the postoffice they condemn their stupidity in most amazing terms. On campus they bewail their failing memory—in the dining room they shudder at the mention of anything which recalls strange things concerning "the perfect food" or a minimum subsistence level.

And now that everyone has flunked, is flunking or will flunk, we start the second lap of the semester before Christmas with elaborate plans for reform. We stagger back from the library with choice books on the subject in question, we haunt the "reserve shelves, and hang a busy sign on the door—

Just how long this enthusiastic reaction will last is open for discussion, but it is a safe bet that after the next round of exams we will again condemn our imperfect intelligence with sufficient abuse.

WILLIAM & MARY NEWSPAPER FEATURES S.B. HOCKEY TEAM

Miss Rogers', Huldah Williams', And Players' Write-ups Occupy Page of Homecoming Issue

The "Flat Hat", the newspaper of William and Mary College, devoted almost an entire page of their Homecoming issue of November first, to Sweet Briar hockey.

This page contained a long and appreciative write-up of Miss Harriet Rogers, as the head of the Department of Physical Education and coach of hockey at Sweet Briar. The article reviewed and quoted Miss Rogers' article in the "1929 Official Field Hockey Guide" which was written in collaboration with Dr. Mary Harley.

A short review of previous hockey matches between William and Mary and Sweet Briar, and the outstanding players in these games was given. Statistics of the 1929 Sweet Briar Varsity were also printed.

The "Flat Hat" featured a picture of Miss Rogers; it also told of Huldah Williams' official debut at Sweet Briar this year, recalling her prominent record in intercollegiate sports in the past.

English Club Discusses

"Thrillers" and Mysteries

Due to the increasing interest in mysteries and thrillers, the English Club will present a program on this topic at their regular meeting at Sweet Briar House, at 9 o'clock, Thursday evening, November 7.

Laura Howe will trace the developments of this type of fiction and Harriet Williams will point out the ways and means by which writers are able to achieve the readers' thrills.

The meeting is to close with a feature which is, very appropriately, still a mystery.

New Biography Subject As History Club Meets

The History Club held its second meeting of the season on Tuesday, October 29, in the Senior Study. At this meeting, the new biography was discussed and special book reviews were given by two members of the club to illustrate the points of the discussion.

Caroline Mary took up the approach to the new biography in a report on "Queen Victoria" by Lytton Strachey, and Theresa Atkinson contributed with Strachey's "Elizabeth and Essex."

This year the club intends to study historical tendencies as shown in the new biography, the historical novel and other similar types.

Trips are being planned to nearby places of historical interest, and the next one, which will take place in about two weeks, will be to Fredericksburg.

No Bath Salts For Us Say Williams Students

Boston, Mass.—Down at Williams College in Massachusetts they're taking their baths straight these days. "No bath salts for us" the students have declared. Sparse rainfall in that region last summer has badly affected the water supply, and water at school is being rationed out for necessities only. The faculty has voted temporary rules prohibiting students from using bath tubs more than once a day. "We can't afford bath salts with the high price of water," one student wrote home.
